Polo is an all-weather sport and will proceed in sun or rain, unless the weather becomes so severe that it poses a danger to players, horses or guests. If what we call perfect 'English Polo Weather' materialises, and rain is inevitable, we advise you dress for warmth and comfort, wear appropriate footwear (such as Wellies), and bring an umbrella. In the meantime, below is some wet weather inspiration for you.

What to wear to the polo if sunny?

LADIES

Unlike spring racing events, polo is somewhat of a more casual affair and not as formal, but elegance is still key. Think ladylike, skip the stilettos (they're no friend of the field – a block or a wedge are suitable options, and give sequins and fascinators a miss.

Seeing the polo is predominantly played during the spring and summer months, fashion should be more about light fabrics, separates, maxi dresses, lace, jumpsuits and shirts. In terms of footwear, ladies should opt for chic wedges, flats or platforms. Accessories at the polo are key, and a fabulous bag and bold pair of sunglasses can be a fun way to make a statement. It's important not to go for headwear that's overly fussy – something that's a little more casual and protects you from the sun is perfect.

The appropriate headwear would be a straw or wide-brimmed hat.

GENTLEMEN

Brooksfield has a curated mix of stylish and smart attire for the real refined man. Here are some tips:

Dress for comfort and the weather: Think lightweight breathable fabrics – cottons/linens/light weight wool are great options.

Comfortable footwear is going to be a game changer: A pair of brogues, loafers or espadrilles your go to choices here.

Mix it up: Mix and match your top and bottoms. Use chinos, dress pants, tailored short or well-fitting dark jeans with nice blazer or sports coat with a tailored collared shirt or polo shirt to create an effortlessly sophisticated outfit.

Little touches: It's the little finishes that complete the look. A fun pocket square or a textured tie can take your outfit to the next level.

Grab a nice summer hat and a pair of shades to protect yourself from the elements.

In summary Brooksfield recommends you lighten up in distinguished style, be timeless with sophisticated flair, create a lasting memory in colour and make the right impression with suave pairings.
